“This book breaks important new ground in the frontiers of the science and theology debate. Its exploration of the theological problems presented by neuroscience is both novel and accessible, and will be of interest not only to those working in theological anthropology and the science-theology debate. It also addresses non-specialist readers working in such fields as biological science, medicine, and spiritual care in clinical settings.” — Dr. Gary D. Badcock, Peache Professor of Divinity (Emeritus), Huron at Western University, Canada

Can we live with being merely a brain with a history of being souls? Can our supra-nature, learnt in the crucible of religion and expressed in theology, survive without being exiled to the quantum mysteries of consciousness? Our very survival depends on these questions being answered in this non-expert conversational work.
