Jean Lescure's General and Periodic Crises of Overproduction is a pioneering study of the causes and consequences of industrial crises in capitalist economies in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. It was updated periodically through five editions, and now appears in English for the first time.

Readership

The book will appeal to economic theorists and historians of economic thought and economic analysis as well as to business, financial and economic historians more broadly. It would also appeal to general interest readers who value English language translations of major French and German economic thought.

About the Author(s) / Editor(s)

Professor D'Maris Coffman holds a Chair of Economics and Finance of the Built Environment at UCL's Bartlett Faculty of the Built Environment. She is the director of the Bartlett School of Sustainable Construction.

Dr Kabiri is Head of the Department of Economics and International Studies and Co-director of the MSc in money banking and central banking at the University of Buckingham.

Nicholas Di Liberto is an honorary assistant researcher in the Bartlett School of Sustainable Construction, University College London, with a focus on the history of economic ideas and environmental history. He is also the translator of Albert Aftalion's Periodic Crises of Overproduction, forthcoming from Anthem Press.
